AtCor receives Russian marketing approval

- Potential Market of 400 SphygmoCor[®] systems over the next 3 years

AtCor Medical Holdings (ASX:ACG) announced today that it has received formal certification from the Russian Ministry of Health, allowing AtCor to market its SphygmoCor[®] non-invasive central blood pressure systems throughout Russia.

“Together with our Russian partner Polyservice, LLC, we are very pleased to now have the ability to bring the full benefits of our unique technology to this growing and strategically important market,” said AtCor Medical CEO Duncan Ross. “I am also pleased to report that our first sales to Russian customers are in process with deliveries scheduled this quarter.”

Uwe Kohlmuenzer, Vice President of AtCor Medical Europe commented that, “This is an exciting opportunity for AtCor. The market potential over the next 3 years in Russia for SphygmoCor[®] systems could be up to 400 systems.”

AtCor markets and supports SphygmoCor in 25 European countries and plans to enter additional markets in the region and the Middle East.

About AtCor Medical

AtCor Medical develops and markets products for the early detection of cardiovascular risk and management of cardiovascular disease. Its technology allows researchers and clinicians to assess central blood pressure non-invasively. The company's SphygmoCor system visibly identifies the effects of reflected blood pressure in the central aortic pressure wave, effects which cannot be detected with standard blood pressure monitoring. More than 1,400 SphygmoCor systems are currently in use worldwide at major medical institutions, research institutions and in various clinical trials with leading pharmaceutical companies, and the company's technology have been featured in over 200 peer-reviewed studies published in leading medical journals. AtCor has operations in Australia, the United States, and Europe. For further information, please visit our web site at www.atcormedical.com
